Chelsea Gulinson is a litigation and health care associate at Milligan Lawless, P.C. As an associate, Chelsea's practice focuses on obtaining favorable and cost-effective solutions for clients engaged in complex commercial and civil litigation. She also focuses her practicing on representing business entities and healthcare organizations, physicians, and other providers in a wide range of matters, including complex commercial litigation, compliance and regulatory investigations, healthcare fraud and abuse, and employment matters in court and arbitration proceedings. She advises clients on compliance with federal and state privacy law and license requirements. She also represents clients before state and federal agencies to resolve health care, compliance, investigation, and employment-related disputes.

Prior to joining the firm, Chelsea was a Research Scholar at the Center for Public Health Law and Policy, Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law, and Staff Attorney for the Network for Public Health Law, Western Region Office. Her focus was researching and publishing articles on the Opioid Epidemic – a topic which she remains passionate about.

Chelsea graduated from the Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law in 2018 with certificates in Health Law and Genomics & Biotechnology. During law school, Chelsea worked for the Arizona Health Care Cost Containment System (Arizona's Medicaid Agency), Phoenix Children's Hospital, and the Honorable Donn Kessler at the Arizona Court of Appeals. She was President of the Women Law Students' Association, and on the boards of the Health Law Society and Student Bar Association. She was also an Articles Editor for Jurimetrics, the Journal of Law, Science and Technology, where she published her comment "Embryonic Stem Cell Tourism."

In September 2022, she was named one of Phoenix Magazine's Top Lawyers, a nomination-based award by others in the Phoenix legal community.
